Central LRT station soon to be caffeinated

Underground economy. Coffee and breakfast spot opening in September

A local cafe is taking its business underground, with the planned opening of a new spot in the Central LRT station.

The team behind the Elm Cafe plans to launch Burrow, a new cafe in the Central LRT station, in mid-September. The plan is for the new spot on the concourse to offer breakfast and lunch fare along with much-needed morning coffee.

Owner Nate Box said he believes both the LRT and that part of downtown both really need a cafe like this.

"One of the reasons we wanted to be down there is that we see a need for great coffee and great food in the downtown core," he said.

Another reason is the potential — Box said with so many people coming by the location, there is an amazing opportunity.

"We have got 20,000 people that we can naturally glean from every day," he said. "If we glean one per cent of that we're looking at 200 customers, which already puts us past what Elm does in an average day."

The city first expressed interest in locating businesses in the LRT four years ago. Box said they put in a proposal then and while the delay was a little frustrating, the city is embracing the idea now and really supporting the local business.

"This is kind of them putting their time and effort and money where their mouth is," he said.

Quinn Nicholson, a spokesman for Edmonton Transit, said the city always has an eye open for ways to improve the LRT experience.

"The City of Edmonton is always exploring ways to promote economic development in its LRT stations while partnering with companies in offering new products and services to ETS customers," he said in an email.

Nicholson said there are several potential commercial sites on the new LRT line to NAIT expected to open later this year, but no decision has been made about how to use them.

Graff. Foster parents stop sharing beds with babies

The death of an infant in care has led to Alberta's child advocate recommending that foster parents stop letting babies sleep with them.

Del Graff made the suggestion Tuesday in a report into the death of an unnamed six-week-old girl in 2013.

Her foster parents moved her from a crib into their bed in the middle of the night and she was found unresponsive the next morning. An autopsy could not determine a cause of death and police ruled there was no crime.

Graff said the province provides a two-day training course for foster parents that includes a section on safe sleeping practices, along with the statement "do not share the bed."

The course was not mandatory but, starting this fall, a new version of it will be.

Graff said that's still not enough.

"Foster parents are taking on the responsibility of providing care to someone else's child and the decision about bed-sharing should not be the foster parents'," he wrote.

His report outlines different expert opinions on bedsharing, including one from the Public Health Agency of Canada that identifies it as a risk factor for suffocation and undetermined death in infants, such as sudden infant death syndrome, or SIDS.

"There are conflicting theories about what is best for babies," said Graff. "Some argue that 'attachment parenting,' which includes bedsharing, is best, while public health agencies and medical professionals recommend that babies should sleep in a crib.

Fringe organizers are not clowning around

Third largest in world.

Edmonton's Fringe fest is serious about offering quality shows for fans

Touted as one of the top fringe festivals on the planet, you'd think the Edmonton International Fringe Theatre Festival would rest on its laurels, with an "if it ain't broke, don't fix it" attitude.

But instead, organizers have a slew of new offerings for fringe patrons, giving the 33rd edition of this favorite summertime city festival a fresh vibe.

The festival will still open with the traditional Performers' Parade on Aug. 14 (with an expanded route), but there will also be a free Kids Fringe area

For the grown-ups, there will be wine and beer tents featuring free-for-all entertainment on opening weekend.

"We even have a new fringe-branded beer at the festival and at bars along Whyte leading up to the event," said Jill Roszell, executive director of Fringe Theatre Adventures.

In addition, there will be same-day discount ticket sales for select shows, a fringe fan club and places to post comments about the event online, with patron review message boards and fringe forums.

"You'll see more art activated on site this year — an energy, and sense of community," said program director Murray Utas.

"Our '70s theme of Fringed and Confused is playful — a gathering. We want people to come have fun with us."

New ways to navigate the festival include a first-time fringer program (Aug. 12 and 16), a $10 program which is now larger in size and format and a free fringe festival app available for download.

Crime. Mountie sentenced for 2011 assault on driver

An Alberta RCMP officer received a one-year conditional discharge after pleading guilty to shooting a motorist in 2011.

Const. Jason Clace of the RCMP Boyle detachment was charged with assault with a weapon and careless use of a firearm following an incident in September 2011.

Following an independent investigation by the Alberta Serious Incident Response Team, Clace pleaded guilty to the two charges in June.

The investigation found that Clace had stopped, and then shot the driver in the

Calgary MLA wants back into Conservative caucus

Politics. Donna Kennedy-Glans left the party in March, blaming the Tories' culture of entitlement

A Calgary member of the legislature, who left the Tory caucus as a revolt roiled over former premier Alison Redford's leadership, has asked to rejoin the government.

Calgary-Varsity member Donna Kennedy-Glans cited the inability to create change from within the party and a culture of entitlement as reasons for leaving caucus and her associate minister post on March 17, two days before Redford's resignation announcement.

She has been sitting as an Independent, but says she is asking to rejoin the Conservative caucus after talking with her constituents about the party's changing leadership.

"I continue to have their trust and to receive a strong endorsement to rejoin the PC caucus as their MLA," she said Tuesday in a statement.

Kennedy-Glans said she and her constituents are encouraged by the commitments to change that have been made by each of the three leadership candidates.

"What Albertans want from their politicians is not complex," she said.

"What they have told me they want is, quite simply, a government that leads while also listening, that opens the doors to our ingenuity and our capacity for innovation, and that uses all of our resources wisely, now and into the future."

Experts ask residents to give wildlife a break

Edmonton's wildlife experts are asking residents to spare pesky critters the pellet gun when the animals come venturing onto their property.

Kim Blomme of the Wildlife Rehabilitation Society of Edmonton said a number of animals, including whitetailed prairie hares, blackbilled magpies and crows, have been brought into the centre with pellet wounds.

In almost every case, the animals had to be euthanized, Blomme said.

"I think what happens is because all the wildlife are having babies, there is an increased perception that ... we're being overrun by jackrabbits, we're being overrun with magpies and crows," she explained.

"I think that's what it is — people start to take matters into their own hands."

Blomme said it's typical for this time of year to see more

"Those populations do level themselves out again over the course of the winter. We're not being overrun by these animals," she said.

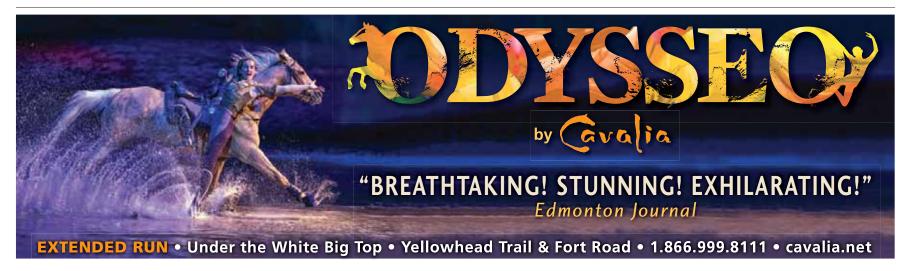

She added that there are more humane ways to keep wildlife out of people's yards.

"We share the urban landscape with these animals, and we need to be aware there are going to be times when their numbers are up and when their numbers are down."

Reclaim Urban Farm produces bountiful Edmonton business

'Pretty good growing season'. One of the two people behind the idea says business is booming

Tiny parcel by tiny parcel, Reclaim Urban Farm is growing all over south Edmonton.

The urban farming business that launched this spring has spread across 15 lots in its first years and is serving several restaurants and making a regular appearance at the 104 Street Farmer's Market.

Ryan Mason, one of two people behind the new farm, said restaurants have really embraced the idea and the first year of their business has gone really well.

"It has been a pretty good growing season this year, as

Expansion

- Ryan Mason said next season they hope to double the land they are growing on, with a focus on larger lots.
- Across their current 15 plots, they grow lettuce and other greens — including edible flowers.

well," he said.

Reclaim use small parcels of lands, in some cases just backyards, to grow vegetables and greens, which they sell to local restaurants. Landowners get vegetables of their own in exchange for the use of their land.

Mason said owners also get a boost in the look of their properties through the deal. He said at the St. John's Institute, which is letting them use a vacant patch of land, neighbours are constantly noticing the difference.

"Everyone that walks by when we are there comments that they love what we are doing," he said.

Chef Eric Amyotte, at Café Bicyclette, said he loves the vegetables Reclaim sells to his kitchen and because his restaurant is smaller, he can rotate the menu easily to accommodate the changing selection.

"Being we're only doing some 40 covers a night, I can utilize it and showcase it properly," he said.

He said the candy-cane beets Reclaim grows are especially flavourful.

"They are just gushers. They just explode with sweetness," he said.

Targeting crime. Police zero in on west Edmonton

Residents living in west Edmonton can expect to see an increase police presence, as EPS deploys it's Community Action Team later this week.

According to acting Staff Sgt. Roger Bellerose, EPS's CAT team will be targeting crime in the west end starting Wednesday.

"Our focus is to address any crime or disorder in the area," said Bellerose.

EPS has been in contact with members of the community and business owners in the area who have identified some concerns, including prostitution, property theft and drug crimes. "(It's) just a variety of crimes going on out there that have really caught our attention," Bellerose said.

EPS will focus the increased police resources, including more sworn members, around hospitality venues, commercial businesses and certain neighbourhoods.

Highly visible EPS units will also be on patrol for "identified hot spot locations," detailed a news release. LEAH GERMAIN/METRO

Deadly police chase. Judge rules proper changes already made

A judge in a fatality inquiry says police in Edmonton have made sufficient policy changes for chasing vehicles equipped with GPS tracking devices.

Colleen Joan Cappo was a passenger in a stolen car being pursued by police on Feb. 16, 2009.

Police called off the chase when it became dangerous, but seconds later the speeding car collided with another vehicle and crashed into a tree. The 31-year-old woman died in hospital.

Judge Raymond Bodnarek said in his inquiry report released Tuesday that officers broke some rules during the chase. An officer in a second cruiser followed the stolen car six extra blocks and police vehicles didn't have their sirens on continuously.

But the judge ruled that those mistakes are not likely to have contribute to the crash. The Canadian press

Calgary investigators have ventured to Mexico as they continue to pursue new leads in relation to an alleged triple murder, a police spokesperson confirmed Tuesday.

Crown won't retry father for murder in twin girls' deaths

'Mr. Big sting.' Supreme Court said that Nelson Hart's confession, which was used convict him of murder in 2007, couldn't be used against him

A Newfoundland man convicted of drowning his twin daughters after a so-called Mr. Big sting by the RCMP will not face a new trial after the Supreme Court of Canada ruled what he told police officers is inadmissible.

Hart, now 45, was to be released to an undisclosed location after nine years behind bars. The Crown said it couldn't retry him for murder in the deaths of his three-year-old daughters, Karen and Krista, who wound up in the water near a boat launch called Little Harbour on Aug. 4, 2002.

Lawyers for Hart say there is no evidence of a crime without the confession given during an elaborate police sting.

Hart's conviction in 2007 by a jury in the drowning deaths of his three-year-old twin daughters at Gander Lake was initially overturned on appeal in 2012. The Supreme Court of Canada upheld that decision last week, ruling a confession Hart gave to police posing as mobsters cannot be used against him.

Hart has maintained that the deaths of his daughters, Karen and Krista, were accidental but changed his story about what happened.

RCMP launched the Mr. Big sting in February 2005 and spent about $413,000 over four months while officers posing as gangsters recruited Hart to join their crime network. Lawyers for Hart at his appeal stressed that he had a Grade 5 education, was on social assistance and was easily led. They said that he was especially vulnerable to the Mr. Big tactic used by police extract confessions of prior crimes. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Horrendous night.' Search for two missing girls ends with joyful family reunion

A frantic search for two young girls who were missing for about 17 hours at a camp-ground near Calabogie, Ont., ended in smiles, as the nine-and 11-year-old girls were rescued in dramatic fashion Tuesday afternoon by the OPP.

The girls spent a night alone in the woods after wandering too far during a game of manhunt, making for a "horrendous" night for family back at the campsite.

Nine-year-old Elya Munro and her 11-year-old cousin Ember Greatrix were rescued after an intense 16-hour search that involved about 30 officers in a helicopter, ATVs, boats and on foot. It was a voice call that eventually found the lost girls about two kilometres in thick bush. Paramedics delivered the girls back to family in an ATV for a reunion that had parents and grandparents in tears.

"We are so relieved," said

"We are so relieved," said Elya's grandmother Helene Ripley, fighting back tears just minutes after the girls were re-

"We are absolutely thrilled; it was a horrendous night."

Paramedics became concerned that the girls were suffering from hypothermia and dehydration, especially since a thunderstorm ripped through the area overnight. But the girls were found with only minor scratches and bumps.

Sayeeda Warsi, a Foreign

Office minister of Pakistani descent, announced her departure on her Twitter feed. The move apparently took Downing Street off-guard, and loaded more pressure on Prime Minister David Cameron, who is under fire by the opposition and members of his own party for his staunch support of Israel.

My view has been that our policy in relation to the Middle East peace process generally, but more recently our approach and language during the current crisis in Gaza, is morally indefensible, is not in Britain's national interest and will have a long-term detrimental impact on our reputation internationally and domestically," Warsi said.

Britain supports a two-state solution. In his response letter to Warsi, released by Downing Street, Cameron said the country has "consistently made clear our grave concerns about the heavy toll of civilian casualties and have called on Israel to exercise restraint, and to find ways to bring this fighting to an end.'

Warsi's departure robs Cameron of one of the most visible Conservative Party women in power. She was often seen at Cameron's side and was a poster girl of sorts – an example of the party's efforts to embrace cultural diversity.

Labour Leader Ed Miliband quickly seized upon the news, describing Warsi as having acted with "principle and integrity." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel, Hamas to negotiate new Ğaza border deal

Ceasefire. Hamas has signalled flexibility on ceding some authority to Palestinian prez in Gaza

The outlines of a solution for battered, blockaded Gaza are emerging after Tuesday's tentative Israel-Hamas ceasefire: Norway is organizing a donor conference and Westernbacked Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas aims to oversee rebuilding and reassert his authority in the territory, lost to Hamas in 2007.

Forces loyal to Abbas would be deployed at Gaza's crossings to encourage Israel and Egypt to lift the closure they imposed after the Hamas takeover.

Indirect Israel-Hamas talks in Cairo are to tackle the details. The hope is that promises of a better life for Gazans will coax compromise and avert what had been looking like a fight to the finish.

The gaps remain wide, es-

The truce is to remain in effect for at least three days, with an expectation that it will be extended to allow Cairo talks on a Gaza solution to proceed. Both the United States and the UN are sending representatives.

Mohammed Mustafa, a deputy prime minister in the Abbas-led government, said he has already started preparing a Gaza reconstruction plan that would be presented at an international pledging conference in Norway.

Airlines keep eye on Ebola outbreak

Precautions. What are carriers doing to ease flyers' concerns?

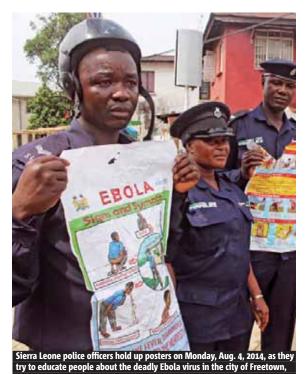

As the Ebola outbreak in West Africa grows, airlines around the globe are closely monitoring the situation but have yet to make any drastic changes. Here are some key questions about Ebola and what airlines are doing to contain it.

Q: Why are airlines so concerned?

A: Airlines quickly take passengers from one part of the globe to another. With some germs, one sick passenger on a plane could theoretically infect hundreds of people who are connecting to flights to dozens of other countries. Health and airline officials note, however, that Ebola spreads only through direct contact. Outbreaks of diseases that can spread through the air, such as the flu and severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS), are more problematic for airlines.

Q: Should people travel to West Africa?

A: The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on Thursday warned Americans to avoid nonessential travel to the West African nations of Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

Sierra Leone. Youssouf BAH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Q: Is Ebola deadly?

A: Very much so. If contracted, there is no vaccine and no specific treatment. The World Health Organization estimated Monday that there have been 887 deaths from the current Ebola outbreak. That translates to a fatality rate of about 60 per cent.

Q: How is Ebola transmitted?

A: The virus spreads only through direct contact with the blood or fluids of an infected person, according to the CDC. It can also be spread through objects, such as needles, that have been contaminated with infected fluids. No airborne transmission has been documented.

Q: Are passengers leaving Africa being screened?

A: Since the outbreak erupted, the CDC has sent approximately two dozen staffers in West Africa to help try to track cases, set up emergency response operations and provide other help to control the outbreak. Last week, CDC officials said the agency will send 50 more in the next month. CDC workers in Africa also are helping to screen passengers at airports, according to CDC director Dr. Tom Frieden.

Q: Has the airline industry dealt with any outbreaks in the past?

A: In 2003, there was a global outbreak of SARS. During the 2003 outbreak, 8,098 people worldwide became sick with SARS; 774 of those died. Airports started screening incoming passengers for fever. The disease was devastating for airlines because fearful passengers stayed home.

Infected. Second of two aid workers arrives at American university

A second American aid worker infected with Ebola arrived Tuesday in Atlanta, where doctors will closely monitor the effect of ZMapp, an experimental drug she agreed to take even though its safety was never tested on humans.

Nancy Writebol arrived from Monrovia, Liberia, in a chartered jet at Dobbins Air Reserve Base and was then taken in an ambulance to Emory University Hospital. She joins Dr. Kent Brantly, also diagnosed with the virus, who arrived at Emory and walked from an ambulance.

The two patients — being treated in an isolation unit — were infected despite taking precautions as they treated Ebola patients in West Africa.

Experimental drug

Canada's contribution to fighting Ebola virus

Canadian research is at the heart of an experimental Ebola therapy recently given to two American aid workers infected while caring for patients in Liberia.

The unlicensed drug, called ZMapp, is made of three monoclonal antibodies, disease-fighting proteins that target a specific part of an invading pathogen, in this case the Ebola Zaire virus — the specific strain of Ebola responsible for this outbreak.

Two of the monoclonal antibodies are the product of years of research done at the Public Health Agency of Canada's National Microbiology Laboratory in Winnipeg, the agency said.

The third was developed at the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID).

The former head of the Winnipeg-based laboratory said he was delighted to hear the Canadian-designed antibodies had been used in this way.

"This is really gratifying to see the work come to fruition," said Dr. Frank Plummer, who stepped down as scientific director in March. "It's a big achievement after years and years of very hard work." The CANADIAN PRESS

Michigan. Boy, 9, dies after repeated stabbing by 12-year-old, police say

A nine-year-old boy died after being repeatedly stabbed by a 12-year-old boy at a playground in western Michigan, police said Tuesday.

Michael Conner Verkerke ran home and collapsed on the porch around 6 p.m. Monday after he was stabbed at a mobile home park in Kentwood, near Grand Rapids, according to police. Investigators said the older boy then left the playground and called police from a nearby home to turn himself in. The nine-year-old died after being rushed to a hospital.

Witnesses told investigators that four children were playing when one of them, for unknown reasons, pulled a knife and stabbed the boy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hundreds of volunteers have converged on the nearby city of Zhaotong en route to the quake-hit areas. The quake struck an area of steep hills and narrow roads not suited to all the traffic of the massive relief effort, and heavy rain Tuesday added to the complications.

Detained Canadian couple could not have stolen Chinese state secrets: Son

The Garratts.

Accusations come on the heels of Canada's claims that China hacked into a government agency's computers

A Canadian couple detained in China on suspicion of stealing state secrets about the country's military spent their days running a coffee shop and have never been in a position to gain access to classified government information, their son said Tuesday.

Kevin Garratt, 54, and Julia Dawn Garratt, 53, who have lived and worked in China for the past 30 years, were out for dinner with friends in the city of Dandong, near the border with North Korea, when they were detained Monday night.

"As of right now my parents are being held in an undisclosed location. I have heard that they're safe but they're just a bit confused. They actually have no idea what's going on," Simeon Garratt told The Canadian Press in an interview from Vancouver.

The 27-year-old said his younger brother, who lives in Dandong, was told of his parents' detention by Chinese authorities and instructed to bring spare clothes and toiletries for them on Tuesday, but wasn't allowed to speak with the couple.

"He was brought in for questioning and that was relayed to him. He didn't get to talk to them. (Officials) said, 'Maybe later,'" Garratt said, adding that the allegations against his parents weren't explained to the family.

China's official Xinhua News Agency has reported that the couple are being investigated by the state security bureau on suspicion of stealing state secrets about the country's military and national defence research.

The accusations come just a few days after the Canadian government blamed Chinese hackers for infiltrating computers at the National Research Council of Canada, something Beijing has vehemently denied.

The fresh allegations in China have led to much bewilderment among the couple's children.

"At this point it just seems like my parents are getting caught up in something that's a whole lot bigger than them," said Garratt, who grew up in China. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's role

A spokesman for the Department of Foreign Affairs said Canadian officials are in contact with local Chinese authorities and are providing assistance to the detained couple.

- There is a possibility the Garratts might be detained for weeks or months, not days, as Chinese and Canadian officials negotiate, said observer Gordon Houlden, director of the University of Alberta's China Institute.
- The offence of stealing state secrets is a serious crime in China, said Houlden, noting that the allegations against the Garratts came as a surprise to him.

Summer jobs won't cover tuition costs come fall: Survey cibc report. While most students are working right now, they say they won't earn enough to pay their costs during the upcoming school year

While most Canadian students are working this summer, most of them won't make enough money to cover their college or university costs.

"The reality is that many students rely on their summer earnings to help pay for their college and university education," says Christina Kramer, executive vice-president of retail and business banking at CIBC.

Kramer says it's crucial for students to create and stick to a realistic budget while working in the summer to make it easier to manage expenses once back at school.

But among those who responded to a Leger online poll conducted for the bank, 73 per cent said they will need to work during the upcoming year to support their university or college expenses.

Of the 500 people who took part in the poll, a majority of the students who are working this summer expected to earn between $1,001 and $5,000, and about one-quarter expected to earn between $5,001 and $10,000.

The poll found that 45 per cent of the students were making $11 per hour or less, and 60 per cent were working part-time hours.

Another 20 per cent of those surveyed said they had been looking for summer work but were unable to find anything, as well as 10 per cent not working for the summer and five per cent who are working at a volunteer or unpaid position.

This includes: calling phone numbers without your intervention and sending text messages; recording audio with the microphone, and taking photos and videos with the camera, without your confirmation; and reading your phone's call log. Facebook has defended its app by saying it's not so different than others, adding companies must ask for various permissions all at once in order for its app to function properly.

Africa's economy is blossoming, but will it last?

They export BMWs and birdseed and plenty in between. Their middle class is growing fast enough to draw the likes of Marriott and Wal-Mart. China, Europe, Japan and the United States are vying to build roads and power plants there.

No longer are the nations of sub-Saharan Africa, long a symbol of war, famine and corruption, an economic basket case. Six of the world's fastest-growing economies are there. Higher oil prices, richer consumers and sounder governments have raised so much interest in Africa's economic promise that it's being showcased this week at the first U.S.-Africa Leaders

Summit in Washington.

The question is: Can all this endure?

Africa has stood on the verge of prosperity before only to see its opportunities fizzle. Yet never before has it stood to benefit as it does now.

As African leaders gather to mark a decade of economic gains, they appear intent on sustaining the growth and ensuring that the benefits are spread broadly and not siphoned away by corrupt officials and foreign companies.

In the decades after many of the countries regained their independence in the 1960s, their natural resources — Nigerian oil, Liberian diamonds, Congolese copper and cobalt — failed to support durable growth. They sometimes proved a curse: Proceeds would vanish into Swiss bank accounts of corrupt leaders and give armed factions something to fight over.

PRIVACY IS WHAT YOU MAKE OF IT

I recently read an article in the Washington Post that asked if there was still such a thing as privacy.

A subsequent piece in the Guardian claimed that the slogan for the modern age is: Privacy is dead. Get over it.

Then, I found myself privy to a dispute between a teenage girl who went out partying, when she was supposed to be staying at her friend's house. She pleaded "breach of privacy" after her caper was foiled when her parents checked her Twitter account, which had followers favouriting the Instagram photo that ultimately betrayed her. But the stupidity of that escapade not withstanding, the underlying grievance is one as old as Adam and Eve: Breach of privacy.

Last year, when Edward Snowden revealed that the National Security Agency may have "misused" surveillance technology, everyone was astonished.

There are vulnerabilities that come with relying on technology, not the least of which is that people can enter our home without ever entering our home, but knowing that, perhaps we should maintain a little control over what we can control when we shout from the virtual mountaintops.

What? You mean every time I post personal details about my life on Facebook, like "making out with random stranger at da club," "crossing the border to do some shopping," or "flashing boobs for beads at Mardi Gras" for everyone to see, someone actually sees them?

Here's the thing about privacy: Nobody ever cares about it until it's breached. It's a God-given right that is taken for granted until it's no longer there.

And the more personal information you post online, the more the World Wide Web knows you. If you've ever bought anything or banked online, it knows your credit card, PIN and how many times you've gone into overdraft. It knows your boyfriend's cheating before you ever see the naked double selfie-film posted on Vine. It knows that despite all your vegan moralizations, you succumbed to a cheeseburger while vacationing in Calgary because it was captured by someone filming grandpa's 97th birthday that ended up on YouTube.

The meaning of privacy is going to change, if it hasn't already. It used to mean, "Don't read my diary," or "Stop knocking. I'm in here!", but now it may mean telling pals not to share posts that were designated for friends, unless specified for "friends of friends.

The worst part is, you can't take any of it back. Anything that's out there is public. The only thing you can do is treat social media like that one mate we all have with the big mouth, and tell that person only what you want everyone to know. Just sayin'.

Hindus prepare for Ganesh Chaturthi festival

Ganesh Chaturthi is celebrated by Hindus around the world as the birthday of Lord Ganesh.

It is observed during the Hindu month of Bhadra (mid-August to mid-September) and the grandest and most elaborate of the celebrations, especially in the western India state of Maharashtra, lasts for 10 days.

Lifelike clay models of Lord Ganesh are made two to three months prior to the festival. The size of the idols may vary from threequarters of an inch to more than 25 feet.

On the first day, they are placed on raised platforms in homes or in elaborately decorated outdoor tents for people to view and pay their homage. A priest, usually clad in a red silk dhoti and shawl, is then said to invoke life into the idol amidst the chanting of mantras. After this, tributes of coconut, red flowers and other items are offered and the idol is anointed with red paste. HINDUISM.ABOUT.COM

And on the 11th day ...

For 10 days, Ganesh is worshipped.

On the 11th day, the image is taken through the streets in a procession accompanied with dancing and singing, to be immersed in a river or the sea symbolizing a ritual sendoff for Ganesh's journey back home while taking with him all the misfortunes of all man.

Turtles' shell life extended

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. Coming together to save the world once again

EHRBAR Norld News in Hollywood

South African director Jonathan Liebesman knew that taking on as storied and popular a pop culture franchise as the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles wasn't without its own unique challenges.

Chief among them? Even diehard fans argue about what exactly counts as gospel when it comes to Leonardo, Michelangelo, Donatello and Raphael.

But then again Liebesman likes a challenge.

For me, I was a huge fan of the cartoons and the movies. I didn't know a lot about the comic books until I met Kevin Eastman and read the comics. What was important were touchstones such as pizza and cowabunga, but their personalities were what was most important. There are those tropes, for sure. I think it's like a dysfunctional family that has to come together to save the world.

In the age of Man of Steel and The Dark Knight, you have to make sure audiences know this isn't meant to be taken seriously, right?

That's what I love about the Turtles. I feel like the stuff that I became a fan of was actually the parody of superheroes, the fact that they are so absurd the combination of teenage, mutant, ninja and turtles is

There was a time when the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles were everywhere, but, like all pop culture fads, eventually Turtle mania played itself out.

This weekend, producer Michael Bay is hoping to give the 20th-century pop culture icons a new lease on life. The release of the new Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles is timed to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the first TMNT comic book.

Turtle groupies spoke up when it was announced that Bay wanted to streamline the title to Ninja Turtles but an even bigger controversy struck in 2012.

These turtles are from an alien race," said Bay, "and they are going to be tough, edgy, funny, and completely lovable." Seems benign enough, but fans were incensed the producer would take liberties with the origin story. Tough and lovable are

One internet firestorm later — Robbie Rist, who voiced Michelangelo in the original movies, went so far as to accuse Bay of "sodomizing" the franchise. Bay amended the statement, reassuring fans he would stick to the official origin story. They even poke fun at the controversy in the movie.

"So," says Vernon (Will Arnett), "they're aliens?"

"No," replies reporter April O'Neil (Megan Fox), ʻthat's stupid."

Eva gets Sin City poster flap off her chest

NED EHRBAR

Eva Green doesn't get why everyone is so hung up about her boobs, and we kind of love her for it. When a poster for Sin City: A Dame to Kill For — which featured the actress in a sheer top with the silhouette of her chest visible beneath — prompted outcry, the studio swapped it out with a toned-down version, much to Green's chagrin.

"I mean, the poster, you don't see anything!" the hardly shy actress says. "Just wait for the movie, then. It's in 3D, as well. Enjoy yourself, you know! It was nothing on the poster, it was lots of noise for nothing."

In fact, if it were up to Green, and we kind of wish it were, any outcry would be over something else in the image.

"I'm holding a gun on the poster," she points out. "No big deal about the gun, it's all about my tits?"

To be fair, Ms. Green: Yes

A villainous Vince Vaughn touted for True Detective's second season

The Internet has had a field day with joke predictions about who will be in Season 2 of HBO's True Detective, but eventually someone has to actually sign on. And it looks like one of those people will be Vince Vaughn, returning to his dramatic roots after a long, long run in the comedy world. Vaughn is said to be in talks to play one of four lead roles in the hit series, which won't see the Season 1 characters played by Matthew McConaughey and Woody Harrelson return. But don't expect Vaughn to be on the right side of the law, as he's said to be considering a villainous role written by series creator Nic Pizzolatto specifically for him.

Boutique hotels and art galleries the sophisticated side of Vegas

So much more than sinning. Nevada's gambling mecca has grown up and is starting to feel more like a city than a tourist trap

DEAN LISK

Contrary to that old saying about what happens in Vegas stays in Vegas, it's time the word gets out that Sin City isn't all that sinful anymore. With a downtown revitalization - including plans for a world-class art gallery — and changes along the strip, this desert city is no longer all about gambling, thousand-room hotels and sexy

The strip

While stretch SUVs still motor up and down S. Las Vegas Boulevard, around 20 million visitors a year are taking their pedals off the metal and instead hitting the pavement. Recently opened between the historic Flamingo Casino and The Quad, The LINQ is an outdoor shopping, dining and entertainment area featuring the High Roller, a 550-foot observation wheel offering epic views of the city and surrounding mountains.

A draw for visitors, the LINQ is also attracting Vegas residents thanks to popular L.A.-based boutique Kitson (want to dress like your favourite star? Photos hang from the ceiling showing paparazzi shots of young stars wearing their products); Brooklyn Bowl, a combination 32-lane alley and music venue hosting acts like Chvrches and The Avett Brothers; and Polaroid Fotobar, where you download your Twitter, Facebook or Instagram images to print them as Polaroid pictures. The LINQ is just one of the areas carved out to make the walk between casinos more enjoyable. The Monte Carlo has also pedestrianized its boulevard frontage to include shops like BLVD Creamery, with a rotating selection of ice cream flavours made on site.

The hotels

A boutique hotel in Vegas? While other resorts count their rooms in the thousands, The Cromwell features only 188 rooms. It opened this spring at the corner of Las Vegas Boulevard and Flamingo Road. Dark hardwood floors, leather details and patterned pink and burgundy wall coverings create a Paris-meets-Vegas feel to the rooms.

The hotel has already become a must-visit fixture on the strip thanks to celebrity chef Giada De Laurentiis' first restaurant, which bears her name, Giada. Mixing Italian fare with Californian flair, the lemon spaghetti, bacon-wrapped dates and lemon ricotta cookies have already gained a reputation in

Whether you visit on a sunny afternoon or after dark, you'll find Drai's Beach Club, located on the roof of The Cromwell, a staple of Vegas day- and night-life. The 65,000-squarefoot indoor and outdoor club, complete with pool, has the best views of the Bellagio fountains and is a frenetic mix of sun-drenched skin and sweat during the day and DJ-fuelled dancing at night. Other hotels are also betting on the boutique experience. This September, MGM Resorts will open The Delano — a Vegas offshoot of the popular Miami luxury hotel – in a section of its Mandalay Bay property.

The arts district

The point at which the northsouth grid system of new Vegas meets the tilted grid of old Vegas will soon be home to The Modern, a 60,000-square-foot contemporary art museum.

The $29-million US project is currently set to open in three years in 18b, an 18-block area that has become known as The Las Vegas Arts District. It is home to Art Square and The Arts Factory — two contemporary art centres featuring a range of artists — and Antiques Alley.

If you find yourself in Vegas at the start of the month, check out First Fridays, a street festival drawing more than 20,000 visitors for a night of food, music and art.

Open air stays for the starry-eyed

Astronomer's delight.

Sleeping in the open air has never been more luxe; check out these options around the world

There's no time like a vacation for taking the time to contemplate the night sky, especially with a supermoon and Perseid meteors set to be visible in some places this month. If the idea of observing the celestial bodies as you drift off to sleep sounds appealing, this selection of hotels is for you.

Tswalu Kalahari South Africa

This private game reserve, located in the South African desert, allows nature lovers to sleep while surrounded by the sounds of the bush, all while contemplating the night sky. Guests can sleep on a luxurious terrace built high above the ground to ensure protection from the occasional wild animal. Prices start at around $500 per night. For more information: tswalu.com

Albereta, Italy

The Cabriolet suite in this hotel, a member of the prestigious Relais & Châteaux network, allows guests to sleep under the stars thanks to its retractable roof. At the push of a button by the bed, the roof can be opened and closed as desired. Prices start at around $615. For more information: albereta.it

Amangiri, USA

Located in the desert of southern Utah, this resort boasts no less than six open-roof suites. Each is shielded from the wind by three walls and provides an unmatched view on the vast desert sky. These suites also have a pool, for those who enjoy midnight swims. Prices start at around $1,500. For more information: amanresorts.com/amangiri/home.aspx

Las Ventanas al Paraíso, Mexico

Each of the penthouse suites at this luxury hotel has a wide terrace where a king-size bed has been set up. Guests can begin their evening admiring the night sky from their out-door bed and end it in the other bed inside, or just stay on the terrace to watch the sunrise. Prices start at around $1,600. For more information: rose-

Elqui Domos, Chile

woodhotels.com

A reference among astronomy enthusiasts, this small hotel park invites travellers to stay inside one of several canvas domes. Each of these unusual dwellings contains a bed under a roof that opens partially to offer a view onto the heavens.

Far from the luxury of the above destinations, the domes are simple and sparsely furnished but provide all the basics. Stargazers will also appreciate the dedicated astronomy observatories located on site. Prices start at around $150. For more information: elquidomos.cl AFP

Decide what goes in your carry-on

Because checked bags have a habit of disappearing, always pack these items in your carry-on. No excuses: 1. All prescription medications, especially ones you can't live without. 2. All jewelry. Many homeowner insurance policies don't cover jewelry if it's lost on a trip. 3. All electronics, including computers, cameras, recorders and phones. Pack the chargers and cords, too, if there's room and you think they may not be replaceable at the other end of the journey.

Rejuvenate your resumé before the warm weather runs out

Seeking for September.

With employers on the search for top candidates this fall, it may be time to sweep the cobwebs from your CV

MEGHAN GREAVES

There are many things to think about when heading into a high-volume hiring period, such as what you're going to wear to your next networking event. Though your outfit might be your top priority, there is one other thing you need to ensure is perfect: your

Do some research

Figure out which employers are hiring, what jobs interest you, what skills you need to focus on, and get an overview of the company culture.

If you can get a sense of how many major jobs you'll be applying for, you can plan your time for writing resumés more strategically, and recognize periods where you'll be applying to similar roles, helping you maintain

Tailor, tailor, and tailor

Every employer offers a number of different roles in their organization. It may be tempting to use a generic resumé, but you won't make the cut.

Every job comes with a unique work environment and culture, and you'll need to do all you can to show that your skills, experience and personal disposition equip you for success in that particular setting.

If you don't write a resumé and cover letter (especially the cover letter) from scratch, an employer will be able to tell.

school address, professional email, two phone numbers). Increasing text size or bolding your name always helps to make your info pop for a reader. Depending on the position, including your professional online profile URL could be a good idea too.

Prep hard and soft copies

Each employer has a different way they'd like you to apply to their opportunities.

Some will take hard copy resumés and some may give you their contact info and have you send your resumé via email. Be on the ball by having copies of your tailored resumé printed and ready to send to them on the spot.

It's also smart to have generic resumés ready to give out and send on the chance that an opportunity becomes available. TALENTEGG.CA IS CANADA'S LEADING JOB SITE AND ONLINE CAREER RESOURCE FOR COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY STUDENTS AND RECENT GRADUATES

Canada World Cup bid suggested by FIFA prez

CSA. Hosting the women's events a big step to a bid for the Big One, says Blatter Sepp Blatter appeared at peace. Perhaps it was lingering memories of a chaotic Brazilian World Cup that have FIFA's president so happy to be in Canada. Maybe it was a modestly attended news conference where he faced no questions about bidding corruption, 2018 World Cup host Russia's alleged military involvement in Ukraine or labour rights regarding 2022 host Qatar.

Whatever the reason, Canada suits Blatter just fine. So fine in fact that Blatter didn't have to be asked about a possible World Cup in Canada he brought it up on his own.

"Let's go to see if you can bring the famous FIFA's World Cup we just played in Brazil to your country," he said Monday.

That's good news for Canadian soccer as it hosts the Under-20 Women's World Cup in Toronto, Montreal, Edmonton and Moncton, N.B.

Blatter called the tournament, along with next summer's women's World Cup a necessary step to a successful bid by the Canadian Soccer Association for the men's tournament.

Power outage for Bouchard

Rogers Cup. Montreal's sweetheart has one of those days, falls in first match on national stage

Shelby Rogers scored a shocking 6-0, 2-6, 6-0 victory over the listless crowd favourite Eugenie Bouchard at the $2.44-million US women's Rogers Cup on a Tuesday thrown into confusion by a more-than-seven-hour power outage.

Play went on despite the lack of electricity, which shut down scoreboards and umpires' microphones, and left the players without light or hot water in their clubhouse.

Bouchard, the rising star from Westmount, Que., suffered a power shortage of her own after walking onto centre court to a standing ovation.

"It was cool to see the support she has here and it's fun to see that much support for tennis," Rogers said. "I knew what I was getting into so I was prepared for it. I hope that doesn't happen too often, but I know she's a mega superstar up here."

don final last month, couldn't make a shot in the first set, hitting normally routine shots long or wide.

The crowd went quiet watching as Bouchard's body language suggested she'd like to crawl into a cave and stay

"I was feeling the pressure on the court and I was feeling kind of match-rusty," Bouchard said. "I knew it would be kind of a difficult situation but I'm happy I was able to turn things around and not let it get away completely."

Bouchard rebounded in the second set, hitting the crisp mix of shots that took her to at least the semifinals of the first three grand slam events this year. But nothing worked for her again in the third set.

Earlier, Elena Vesnina stepped in as a replacement for the ailing Andrea Petkovic and posted a 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 victory over Camila Giorgi.

And former world No. 1 Venus Williams rebounded from a shaky second set to defeat Anastasia Pavlyuchenkova 6-1, 3-6, 6-2 in the first round in the hard court event.

The afternoon matches saw scoreboards go dark due to a long power outage that affected 200,000 Hydro Quebec customers in the area, but the matches went on uninterrupted.

2014 Toyota RAV4

- Type: Four-door, frontwheel or all-wheel-drive compact SUV
- Engine: 2.5-litre fourcylinder (176 hp)
- Transmission: Six-speed automatic
- Base price: $23,870, plus destination

Market position

Almost everyone has a vehicle in the compact SUV market, and fierce competition means most are top-notch. The RAV4 scores with a lower starting price than most, while still offering numerous features and creature comforts.

Points

- The RAV4 offers considerable storage space, including hidden cubbies under the cargo floor, fold-flat seats, and a large tray in the dash.
- The seats are comfortable for short commutes, but can get hard on longer drives, so be aware if you're planning to take long trips in it.
- Eco or Sport modes let you adjust for efficiency or performance.

With the spare tire moved inside, RAV4 gets a top-hinged liftgate.

Safety features

Redesigned RAV4 revs it up

Review. Toyota's new compact SUV is a big improvement over the previous model

JIL MCINTOSH

Canadians love compact SUVs, so automakers are continually improving their entries in this highly competitive segment.

Toyota completely redesigned its RAV4 for 2013. The 2014 version undergoes minor trim changes, including a standard navigation system on the top-line Limited

My tester was the base LE with front-wheel drive, which starts at $23,870, along with a $1,500 Upgrade Package that added such features as heated seats, backup camera, cargo cover, silver roof rails, and audio display screen.

An all-wheel-drive system is optional on the LE and mid-range XLE trim line, and is the only choice on the top-line Limited. The AWD primarily runs the front wheels in normal driving, but will send power to the rear wheels when needed in slippery conditions.

Although the previousgeneration RAV4 could be ordered with a V6, all models now use a 2.5-litre fourcylinder that makes 176 horsepower, and is mated to a six-speed automatic transmission. You won't miss the V6; the four-cylinder does an excellent job, even when I had the vehicle fully loaded with passengers and luggage en route to the airport.

The steering is a little too light for my liking, but that also translates into an easy trip around tight spots and into parking spaces. The ride is firm without being harsh but, overall, the RAV4 is very noisy, both from the tires and the engine, which can drone at certain speeds.

The spare tire used to be stored outside on the swing-out rear gate, but now that it's been moved inside under the cargo floor, the RAV4 gets a top-hinged liftgate, which I find more convenient.

The interior looks fabulous, including a stitched dash and steering wheel, easy-to-use controls, and considerable small-item storage for driver and passenger.

The rear seats can be a little tight for tall passengers
— this is a compact, after all
— but those back chairs easily fold flat for extra cargo space.

All in all, this latest-generation RAV4 is a considerable improvement over the old one, and a worthy contender in the small-utility segment.

We must plan for the demise of driving

Autopilot. Automotive researchers predict we will have self-driving cars on our roads by 2020, so why aren't we preparing for that?

AUTO PILOT Mike Goetz drive@metronews.ca

Regrets, I've had a few. By a few, I mean a few hundred.

The ones I'm prepared to speak about publicly mostly revolve around sports cars I should have bought, when they were just "used cars" and 25 years away from becoming the $1-million-plus classics they are today.

I guess we're always not doing things today that would make our futures better. Sometimes it comes down to the future being so cloudy, or taking such crazy turns, that you really have no chance of making the right decisions.

Other times, we can see the future clearly enough, but don't act accordingly. This latter type of misfire is what Paul Godsmark figures is happening right now in our society, as we head into a future where vehicles are self-driven and are able talk to each other and stay out of each other's way.

Godsmark trained in England as a civil engineer; he currently lives in Edmonton, and works as a transportation specialist. He is a member of the Autonomous Vehicle Task Force at ITS Canada, and co-founded the Canadian Automated Vehicles Centre of Excellence (CAVCOE), a nonprofit organization devoted to researching and advocating for automated vehicles. If there are others in Canada with more insight into the economic and social implications of a driverless future than Godsmark, we're not aware of them. He believes that future is coming faster than people think.

"The technology is not just accelerating, the acceleration is accelerating," he says. He predicts there will be some driverless transportation in Canada by 2020, or sooner.

That's only six years away, so any decisions governments and businesses are making today about long-term projects had better be based on this new self-driving paradigm. Of course, they're not. That's why Godsmark is frustrated. "This will be a huge dis-

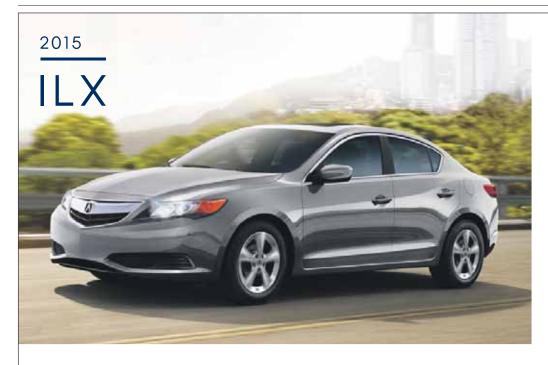

"This will be a huge disruption. There are so many things we could be doing."

He says one of the main things we should be doing is due diligence on all transit plans, especially super-expensive ones, like LRTs and subways. We may not need them.

Godsmark also wonders about businesses that continue to invest long-term in the current paradigm, where large numbers of people need to buy and maintain their own vehicles. If cars can be programmed to show up when you need them, and drive off to someone else when you don't, we won't need nearly as many vehicles.

CAVCOE is proposing some kind of new federal group to lead regulatory matters for driverless vehicles, because such a future will impact all levels of Canadian society — not just the transportation space. Godsmark notes that health costs, tax revenues, jobs, municipal land, and natural resources are just a few of the areas that will drastically change under the driverless paradigm.

"We want to get the message out that we're all stakeholders, every single one of us," he says. "We all need to be aware of the potential changes."

T Aries

March 21 - April 20

Try not to give the impression that you don't know what is going on because that will encourage rivals to keep you in the dark. Pretend you are on top of everything.

Taurus April 21 - May 21

Over the next few days you will have to strike a balance between the needs of loved ones, employers and other important people. Be smart.

∐ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

There will be times today when it seems that for every step forward you take you end up taking two steps backwards. It may be frustrating but go with the flow and don't get uptight.

9 Cancer June 22 - July 23

If you carry on spending money at the present rate you will soon be out of cash. It's time to be honest with yourself about how wasteful you have been lately.

€? Leo July 24 - Aug. 23

You will have to deal with someone who gets emotional for no good reason. They may be in tears but you must stay focus on what needs to be done.

W Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

📤 Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You expect great things of yourself, but sometimes you go too far and set targets that are impossible to reach. What happens over the next few days will bring you back to earth.

■ Scorpio Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

The approaching full moon will make everyone a bit touchy over the next few days, so make allowances for them and make allowances for yourself as well.

プ Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

What happens around the time of the full moon will turn everything upside-down, so there is no point taking anything too seriously. Go where there is laughter and fun.

り Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You seem to believe that the best way to solve a problem is to throw money at it. All you will succeed in doing is wasting even more of your precious resources. Think again.

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The approaching full moon, which takes place in your birth sign this weekend, will upset your emotional equilibrium. But it'll also make you sensitive to the needs of partners.

H Pisces Feb. 20 - March 20

Others may say that you have got something all wrong but you must not allow them to change your opinion.
